What's inside

Every project comes with its numbers, including the one that didn't go to plan. Data from real campaigns is shown as counts only; dashboards use dummy data.

HELLO

Hi, I'm Ais.

I trained as a nutritionist and joined a Jakarta clinic network in October 2025. In twelve months I moved from nutrition coaching to operations to marketing, so I plan campaigns with the clinic floor in mind: what patients pay, what staff can explain, and what the data will show afterwards.

MY FIRST TWELVE MONTHS

Nutritionist Experience Partner	Operations Coordinator	Marketing Communication
Oct – Dec 2025	Jan – Jun 2026 · also Homecare marketing	Jul 2026 – now

WHAT I DO

- Plan promos and campaigns, from pricing rules to flyers and staff briefings
- Run the clinic Instagram: content pillars, carousels, captions, insights
- Build evaluation dashboards and weekly reports for the CEO
- MC every health talk at our in-house clinics

TOOLKIT

Canva · Meta Ads · Instagram Insights · Google Sheets · Apps Script · Notion · WordPress · AI tools

I like marketing that can show its homework.

BY THE NUMBERS

Jul – Oct 2026

Four months in marketing, in six numbers

87 / 66

promo transactions vs target in my best campaign, Sehat Merdeka

4 / 4

clinics passed their own target in that campaign

Campaigns

Promos for a clinic network: vitamin shots, IV drips, flu season and specialist packages. Each one planned, briefed, tracked weekly and reported back.

01

132% of target

CASE 01 · INDEPENDENCE DAY PROMO

Sehat Merdeka

Vitamin-B, stamina and mood boosters across four clinics, with a 17% discount for 17 August.

CHALLENGE

Grow stamina and mood services, and bring more BPJS patients at the public clinic into preventive care.

WHAT I DID

- Two-tier offer: a discount for everyone, plus an extra tier for BPJS patients
- Flyers per clinic, online briefing, then an in-person roadshow
- Weekly tracking against a pro-rated target

87/66
transactions vs target

4/4
clinics hit target

18 vs 4
BPJS patients used preventive care

Most errors came from discount input at the front desk, not from demand. Briefing the floor matters as much as the offer.

CASE 01 · HOW I REPORTED IT BACK

The final evaluation, as a Wrapped story

Clinic teams don't read tables. So I turned the final report into a tap-through story they could open on their phones, like a year-in-review app.

DESIGN CHOICES

- No ranking: small targets make percentages unfair
- Every clinic gets its own award
- "Guess first" cards to keep people tapping

WHAT STAYED IN

- The fixes: 5 transactions without the promo discount
- One clear action per fix
- A thank-you to the medical team

Original in Bahasa Indonesia, built for clinic staff. Partner clinic names replaced with "Klinik Korporat A, B, C".

AUDIENCE

Doctors, nurses and front-desk staff at four clinics, reading on their phones between patients.

FORMAT

Nine tap-through screens built as a web page, shared as one link in the clinic group chats.

RESPONSE

It became my standard for final recaps. The acupuncture and nutrition promo got its own Wrapped story too.

CASE 02 · FLU-SEASON BUNDLES

Immune Season: the one that taught me most

CHALLENGE

Launch a flu-season campaign on 1 October that protects margin and stays within finance's cap on vaccine discounts.

WHAT I DID

- Timed it to the rainy-season outlook
- Every bundle included the flu vaccine, one discount rate per bundle
- Flyers, medical guideline, briefings, app pricing and a tracker, all before launch

WHAT HAPPENED

Redemptions came in far below plan, so I diagnosed each site instead of waiting for the end date.

WHAT I FOUND

- At one site, insurance covers vaccines and vitamins on their own, but not as a bundle
- Elsewhere, bundle prices sat far above what patients usually spend

TURNED INTO RULES FOR THE NEXT PROMO

Check how each site pays · price close to usual spend · never force a bundle. The year-end promo is being planned with these rules.

CASE 03 · MY FIRST CAMPAIGN

C+ Series: Travel Emergen-C

Immune boosters for holiday travel, across six units, in my first month as Marcomm.

- Built a weekly evaluation with a pace-based target
- Flagged a recurring discount error and proposed a cashier SOP

81% of target (55/68)

3 units beat target

The premium IV had zero standalone demand, so next time I bundled it.

CASE 04 · SPECIALIST PACKAGES

Acupuncture & Nutrition

Multi-visit packages at the public clinic, aligned with two doctors, finance and the clinic app.

- Package pricing and new procedure codes
- Monthly evaluation combining sales with Instagram insights

9/9 acupuncture visits, month 1

3–5× story reach when doctors reposted

Reach isn't conversion. Next: a clearer path from story to booking.

CASE 05 · COMMUNITY

OneFamily Community

A free WhatsApp patient community that replaced a paid membership. Weekly broadcast, first-joiner reward, a logo per unit, and a tracker that blocks double claims.

CASE 06 · NEW SERVICE

Homecare marketing

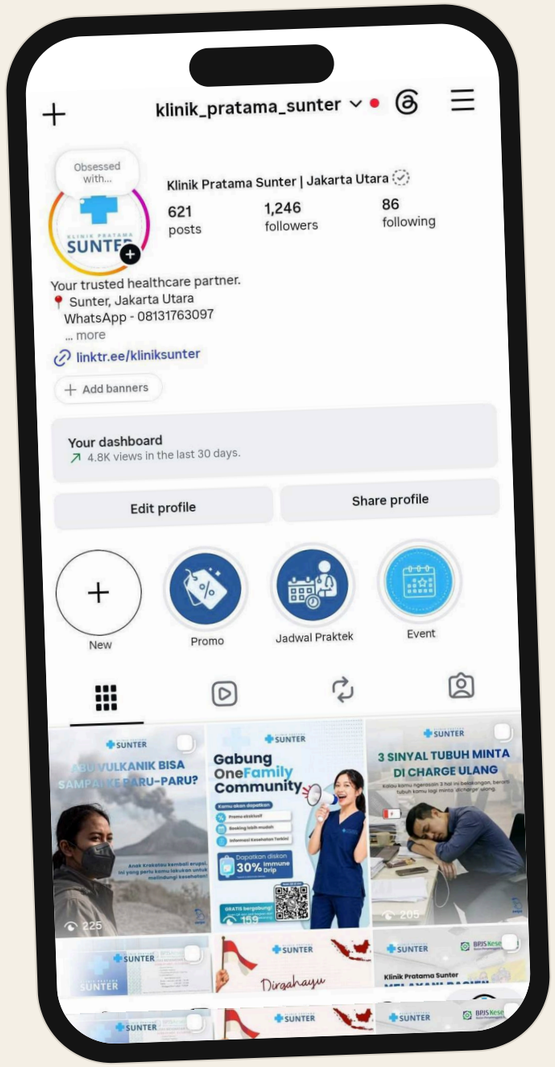

A two-offer Meta ads test: the winning ad was 32% cheaper per WhatsApp chat. Then I diagnosed why chats didn't book: a trust gap, slow after-hours replies, no landing page.

TOP CONTENT BY FOLLOWS

People follow for real faces

The doctor schedule post brought the most new followers in the period (+5), ahead of every promo. “Meet Our Doctor” posts also earned follows.

WHAT I’M DOING WITH IT

- Keep schedules and doctor intros as a monthly rhythm
- Put doctors’ faces in promo visuals too
- Ask doctors to repost; it lifted story reach 3–5×

CHAPTER 04

Brand, plans & stage

The work around the campaigns: a brand book, a five-month plan, print materials, and a microphone at every health talk.

04

AROUND THE CAMPAIGNS

Plans, a brand book, and a microphone

STRATEGY

Marketing Plan, Nov 2026 – Mar 2027

A five-month plan after the network refocused on corporate in-house clinics and homecare.

- Three pillars ranked by impact, effort and dependency
- Five promo design rules drawn from past results
- Monthly timeline with KPIs on a Jan–Oct baseline

A plan is useful when it says what comes first.

BRAND

Brand Book & Vendor Kit

A stiff draft rebuilt as an editorial web book, in two versions from one source.

- Logo rules, colour palette, type system and tone of voice
- Homecare guideline merged in
- Internal book with audience profiles; vendor kit with a delivery checklist

Freelancers get the rules once and stop guessing.

STAGE

Health Talks: MC & speaker

Partner companies book health talks for their employees. I host every one at our in-house clinics.

- MC from opening to Q&A, with a cue card per session
- Speaker at one: “Maintaining a Balanced Diet at Work and Beyond”

A good host makes the doctor’s message land.
